I have learned English for 11 years, but I know few English idioms (习惯用)

语)。When I went to study in America last year, I had trouble communicating with Americans at times.

One day, I asked my roommate Kevin, "Shall we play soccer tomorrow?" He answered, "Let's play it by ear." I was so puzzled. "Ear can play soccer?" He smiled and explained, "It means let's see. The weather report says tomorrow is rainy."

Last October, I was waiting for bus in a station. Beside me sat a young man. When he knew I was a Chinese, he asked me about the Great Wall. I told him, "The Great Wall is more than 20,000 kilometers long." The man said, "You don't say." I was surprised, "There must be something wrong with him." I thought. Later, I knew he meant "Really?"

I was once invited to my classmate's home. His mother said to me, "Break your ice, please." I wondered, "Where is the ice?" Later my classmate told me she meant I could make myself relaxed in their home.

From then on, I realized English idioms had special meanings. It was wrong to them word by word.

(1) What did the writer go to America for? (B)

- A. He did business in America. B. He studied in a college.
C. He spent holidays.

(2) "Let's play it by ear." means A in the passage.

- A. "Whether to play soccer depends on the weather."
B. "Kevin was good at listening."
C. "Kevin could play soccer with his ear."

(3) From the 3rd paragraph (段落), we can know A.

- A. the young man was surprised to know how long the Great Wall was
B. the writer wanted to take a train
C. the young man knew the Great Wall well

(4) "Break your ice" means B in the passage.

- A. 打破僵局 B. 随意 C. 打碎冰

(5) What's the best title (题目) for the passage? (C)

- A. Differences between Universities in America
B. The Most Useful Language—English
C. Importance of Knowing English Idioms

Hot pot is very popular in China. People put a metal pot in the middle of the dining table, while the water in the pot is boiling, ingredients (配料) are put into it and cook on the table. Hot pot dishes are usually thinly sliced (刨切) beef, pork, chicken, lamb, leaf vegetables, tofu and seafood. Many Chinese people like eating hot pot. Liu Yang is one of them.

Liu Yang went to university in England. Three days ago, he arrived there. He had three days of hamburgers, sandwiches and potatoes. Yesterday he was very excited when he heard that there was going to be a meal of hotpot to welcome the new students. He went into the restaurant and sat next to an American girl. To his surprise, he saw potatoes and bread in front of him. Where was the hot pot?

When she saw Liu Yang was very surprised, the American girl introduced him that hotpot is NOT hot pot. China has hot pot in two words but English hotpot is written in one word.

Hotpot is made from meat, potatoes and onions. People put them in the oven on a low heat all day. It is easy to cook.

Hotpot tastes fine. But Liu Yang still misses hot pot, two words!

(1) Liu Yang went to England B.

- A.to see an American girl
- B.to study in a university
- C.to eat some English food

(2) Liu Yang was very excited because A.

- A.he expected to eat his favorite hot pot
- B.he wanted to have a meal of hotpot
- C.he hoped to cook a meal for his new friends

(3) Hot pot is made from A.

- A.meat, potatoes and onions
- B.hamburgers, sandwiches and potatoes
- C.sliced meat and leaf vegetables, tofu and seafood

(4) The underlined word "misses" here means C.

- A.错过
- B.吃
- C.想念

(5) We can learn from the passage that B.

- A.hot pot is much more delicious than hotpot
- B.hot pot is different from hotpot
- C.hot pot is cooked in the same way as hotpot

阅读下面短文，根据短文内容回答问题。

Jeans are so common, and you may want to know its history and who invented them.

Jeans were invented by a German named Levi Strauss. He went to the U.S. in 1847 and followed the Gold Rush to San Francisco. He carried many kinds of fabric (布料) to sell. Levi quickly became a successful businessman. The miners (矿工) in California had a problem with their pants. When they found gold or ore (矿石), they carried it in their pockets. But the metal was heavy, and the pockets ripped (撕开). In 1873, Jacob and Levi made the first jeans-tough pants. The miners loved them, and the jeans quickly became popular.

At the beginning, Levi's jeans were work pants. Many workers wore them all the time. But a gentleman wouldn't think of wearing jeans. Women didn't wear pants at all. But this changed when Western movies became popular. All the cowboys were in jeans. People thought the cowboys looked cool. But jeans still weren't proper (正派的) for places like schools and offices. Back in the U.S., fashions changed. Movie stars wore jeans in their films. Teenagers everywhere loved them. Some schools banned (禁止) jeans because of their "rebel" (叛逆) image. But casual clothing, including jeans, became popular for more and more occasions. Eventually, jeans were so common that it became okay for anyone to wear them. You can even find pictures of the president wearing jeans.

Today, all kinds of people around the world wear jeans. People wear them everywhere. Jeans are popular today for the same reasons they were popular when Levi Strauss first made them. They look good, they last long, and they are comfortable. That's probably why you own a pair or two, or seven, yourself.

- (1) Were jeans invented by an American? No
- (2) When did Jacob and Levi make the first jeans? 1873
- (3) What did people think of the cowboys in jeans? looked cool
- (4) Why are jeans popular today? looks good
- (5) What's the passage mainly about? jeans
